A MESSAGE FROM FATHER MICHAEL . . .

Only with God can we find mercy and forgiveness and that's what we proclaim in Psalm 130 this weekend. The readings give us examples of God's mercy. Ezekiel announces the possibility of life beyond the grave. Even when we bury ourselves in darkness and sin, God triumphs and remains faithful to his promises. God promised to extend mercy and redemption to those chosen. Jesus raises Lazarus from the dead and foreshadows his own glorious resurrection.

Our secular society largely ignores the existence and presence of God. For many, death is quite simply the end and brings with it the grief of loss. The finality of death is viewed as a tragic end. It seems to be a hopeless reality for all. But not for the Christian! Even though there is sadness, death is not the end, but rather a means to pass to a new way of living with God.

In his full humanity, Jesus wept at the death of his friend Lazarus, and at the sorrow that his death caused to those who loved him. But he also delivers the good news to Mary and Martha that death is not the end of the story. Trusting in the Lord, they are disciples whose faith is strengthened by the remarkable miracle of raising a dead man back to life. By raising Lazarus from the dead, Jesus shows us that God always has the final word. God does not desire death to be the end; rather it is a means of passing into the most glorious chapter of our lives – life with God in eternity. The way to eternal life is through death. Therefore, we understand death to be a preparation for the new life to come – a life free from pain, sorrow and sin. May we rejoice that God loves us enough to desire to bring us to the fullness of life in his Kingdom!

God bless you,

Father Michael Kaluza
